She has within and about her, the tlements of future greatness and prospectify, and no circumstances whatover, except ingratitude, and a want of appreciation of the benefits she is daily receiving from other portions of the State, can ever retaid or check this committee of the advantages, and cipple the energies, of the State, by invidious distinctions, and unfair emplations, as a too often the case, let us exand the advantages, and crupple the energies, of the State, by invideous districtions, and disfar comparisons, as is too often the case, let us extend to all the right hand of followship and good will, and rejuce in their presports equally with our own. It frequently happens that technique of jealousy and ill will exist between country and ray growing out of an over reaching to trade or dishonary in dealing, resulting to commercial district. This feeling tends to divertade and commerce to some other nearth and no one can estimate the smoon of machine and injury which such a reputation beggis. Happoly shift wants has as yet, acquired no such reputation and it is the policy of our merchants as divisions. The conditions are reputation so district the smooth of machine and business needs to earl a reputation so district these colors of the confidence, we have enlisted in which has have a four bean reparted as a thould severace. Our diffuse, strands and responsible as in y may be, be tussed to early a reputation as the winds and charge, and whether our services and duly appreciated or not, by those for whom we labor, if we see but knowest and true to the best increase of the city, we shall have the prouds: infaction of knowing that we have an approving conscience, which is of far grater value than the uplance of the people. Finally, gentlemen, whatever you may do that shall lend to the highest in the strain the sail tend to increase its prosperity—lawer its transion—sustain its present good name and repression at home and abroad preserve lower and enhances the growth and prosperity of our trade comminence in growth and prosperity of our trade comminence and manufacture;—you will always have my cordial sanction and support.

Post (Mortem) Consolations for the Pres-

The N. L. Evening Post (Democrat) uses the following plain I'm guage in speaking of the death of the Administration party in New Hamp-

If there was any doubt before of the present aut of public feeling in New Hampshire, there can be none since this election. The State has pronounced itself against Mr. Pierce's admired tration with an emphasis which leaves no room for cavit. Nothing could have been more flattering to a candidate than the vote which New Hampshire gave Mr. Pierce at the time of his election, and scarce any circumstance, we think, could morning him more than such a revisal of its favorable judgement—such a declaration. made could morning him more than such a revisal of its favorable judgement—such a diclaration, made by his old neighbors, of their utter loss of confidence in him. In two years he has gambled away the princely inhoritance of popularity with which he entered upon his official his, retired and broken up his party, and caused a complete revolution in the political character of the States which gave him the most iff ctual support. There never was a man elected to the Pres delay whose public cor new was more plainly defined by the circumstances of the time, and more free from emberraseling perplexities then that of Mr. Pierce two years since, and there never was one among them who missed his way so deplorably.

The Diplomatic Cuban Tito. It is strange, when a man's slight classical lore has become altogether rusty from disuse, how the memory will cling to the desgrel dog latin that actual boys general affect! Thus in exarching about for the moral of this affin, two or three couplets will force themselves upon our recollection though their its only by applying to them as interpretation borrowed from our neighbors around us, that the point of them can be seen — They run thus.

Post (Mortem) Consolations for the President. The N. Y Evening Post (Democrat) uses the following plane he guage in speaking of the death of the Administration party in New Hamp-If there was any doubt before of the presen ate of public feeling in New Hampshire, there can be none since this election. The State has pronounced itself against Mr. Pierce's admires tration with an emphasis which leaves no room for cavi. Nothing could have been more flattering to a candidate than the vote which New ing to a candidate than the vote which New Hampshire gave Mr Pierce at the time of his election, and scarce any circumstance, we think, could mornly him more than such a revisal of its favorable judgement—such a declaration, made by his old neighbors, of their utter loss of confidence in him. In two years be his gambled away the princely inheritance of popularity with which be entered upon his official life, reined and broken up his party, and caused a complete revolution in the political character of the States which gave him the most off cital support. There never was a man elected to the oracis which gove him the most off coast sup-port. There never was a man elected to the Presidency whose public course was more plainly defined by the circumstances of the time, and more free from embarraseing perplexities than that of Mr Pierce two years since, and there never was one among them, who missed his way so deployably.
